

The 1st Pediatric HIV Training Workshop

The Faculty of Medicine, Chiang Mai University, Thailand in collaboration with the Asian Society for Pediatric Infectious Diseases will organize a course that will address all aspects of Pediatric HIV based on evidence-based data to optimize clinical practice.

Course Duration:

12th-22nd December 2017

Venue:

8th floor (Living Library)
Faculty of Medicine, Chiang Mai University,
Chiang Mai, Thailand

Background and Rationale:

Globally, 1,000 children are newly infected with HIV daily with the primary mode of HIV acquisition through mother-to-child transmission during pregnancy, childbirth and breastfeeding. In well-resourced health provider settings, prevention of mother-to-child transmission of HIV has markedly reduced new pediatric AIDS cases. However, in resource-limited countries, the perinatal epidemic continues. Management of children with HIV/AIDS poses specific challenges particularly at a time of rapid change in the field of HIV. The Pediatric HIV/AIDS training course will both inform and update the experienced practitioners serving HIV-infected and exposed children.

Objectives:

- ▶ To provide knowledge and experience in the diagnosis and management including prevention of Pediatric HIV.
- ▶ To work toward improving the prevention and care of HIV/AIDS in children in various countries by ensuring transfer of best quality and relevant information and experiences.

Learning Experience:

This course consists of lectures and discussions. Case studies and ward rounds will be arranged accordingly. The course will be conducted entirely in English.
